A Family's Story: Virtual Home Visits for Grayson's Family (3:17)

The pandemic arrives and Grayson's parents, Niki and Matt and their four boys, face a total upheaval of their typical schedule and routines. They tell their story to other parents to help them understand the value of mobile coaching. While they were not sure initially about using virtual services, they found the value of staying connected and coaching important and adaptable to their ever-changing lives.

FGRBI Resources for Families

Resources

Partnering with Families

Relationships are paramount.

- Listen to families share the dreams they have for their children.
- Visit the family's home routines and activities to gain insight into what is most important to the family in terms of a child's development and skills (Turnbull et al., 2007).
- Provide care and support.
- Build relationships through the creative use of technology.

Intentional ongoing connections are possible and impactful.

Families are experts about their child, practitioners bring expertise in child development.

Partnering with the entire family is beneficial.

Children progress when families embed strategies into home routines.
