

What to Report While Receiving Social Security Disability Benefits

You must report changes in work, income and life to ensure timely and accurate payments.

Information you need to report:

- Changes in work status:
 - Stop working, change a job, or receive a new job offer.
 - Begin or end self-employment.
 - Have an increase or decrease of work hours or pay.
- Income from work:
 - Wages from work if your gross monthly income is more than $1,050 per month.
- Other income:
 - Workers' compensation benefits.
 - Public disability from a state or local government.
- Disability recovery:
 - Significant improvement so your medical condition no longer affects your ability to work.

How to report:

- By phone:
Call +1 800-772-1213,
or TTY +1 800-322-0778 if you're deaf or hard of hearing.
- Online through my Social Security account <https://www.ssa.gov/myaccount/>.
- Mail or fax documents to your local office.
Complete a Statement of Claimant or Other Person \(Form SSA-795\) \(PDF\). Gather supporting information that includes:
 - A brief explanation of your work status or income change.
 - The data of the change.Fax or mail the form along with any supporting documents to your local office.

Find your local office: <https://secure.ssa.gov/ICON/main.jsp>.